Message from the Commander, Jason Coffman

Confederate Patriots,

Summer is here again, feels like Mississippi state around here with all of this humidity. As you all know I have been absent from the camp and it's activities due to the Communist take over of healthcare. Well it looks like I am back. I am out of the hog business and back into engineering again...I hope.

This recent Communist purge of our Southern Military Heritage has got me all wound up and we as a camp are going to do something about it. We need to attend more events this Summer and let them know that we are not going away, we are going to get in their face and hammer them with truth.

The time is good to recruit as the fence sitters are pissed off as much as we are and are willing to join the SCV in defiance of this Communist purge. Reach out to folks you know and get them to join us.

The supply and demand for flags and anything that presents the Old Southern Confederate Republic of nation states is progressing well. Myself and Tim Borron (our Western Brigade Commander) have already been selling camp merchandise like crazy.

I am 95% sure I will be back in camp business gentleman to serve as your Commander. I'm hoping things go well with my interview tomorrow, which will get me back in KC and back in the game.

I should see you all at the upcoming Camp Meeting.

What's been happening on the Western Front..

June Camp Meeting...

A lot has happened since the last Camp meeting. I'll still summarize last months meeting here then we'll talk about current events a few pagers later.

Our Speaker last month was Chris Edwards. Chris is a long time SCV member and use to work for SCV HQ as a recruiter and fundraiser. He has great fundraising ideas that have worked for him in the past and we need to pick his brain more on that subject. We are currently in the process of transferring Chris into our Camp.

Chris's subject was called "Black Flag-A musical/historical presentation featuring Bill Anderson". Chris is a musician who also has a degree in History with an emphasize on the civil war. He has CD's out that feature music centered around the war. Chris spoke about the transcontinental railroad and the Kansas/Nebraska act and what impacts those had to start the war. He talked about David Rice Atchison, and how he brought Missouri voters in to help effect the outcome of Kansas voting. That is demonized but all Atchison was doing was countering what the New England Immigrant Aid Society was doing -bringing in outsiders to effect the voting.

The abolitionist lost at the ballot box but refused to follow the law. They were anarchist, refused to recognize the legally elected government of Kansas, and started their own State Government. They took up arms against the US, lead by the likes of John Brown. Big newspapers from the Northeast sent biased reporters to Kansas who sent misleading and biased news accounts back to the northeast. One reporter was so fair and balanced, that he joined with John Brown! Much has been made about poor bleeding Kansas. In 5 years-only 35 people were killed! The Wakarusa war-no shots were fired. Much to do about nothing. A reporter named GW Brown wrote false and embellished accounts and later said that the means justified the end.

The free staters were white supremacist who wanted Kansas reserved for free white people and did not want blacks introduced into the state. The Abolitionist were radicals who were willing to kill for their cause. When those two groups came together it spelled trouble and helped spark off an entire war.

Bill Anderson lived in Council Grove, KS prior to the war. His mother had been killed by lightning, and his father was murdered over a quarrel about a guy who dumped his daughter. Anderson was accused of horse thievery, that's never been proven. By then the war was cooking off and he went to Missouri to fight against the red legs etc. Late in the war, while scouting ahead of Price's Raid, the Yankees took a page out of Anderson's book and laid an ambush for him, killing him on October 26, 1864. Thanks to Chris for speaking to us and we look forward to having you in the Camp! LTY

Prepare to fight. The Country is in a complete meltdown, with anarchy right around the corner! The commie revolution is here whether you want to fight or not.

Here's something out of Saul Alinsky's rules for radicals, that the White House seems to be a big fan of:

"A revolution without a prior reformation would collapse or become a totalitarian tyranny. A reformation means that masses of our people have reached the point of disillusionment with past ways and values. They don't know what will work but they do know that the prevailing system is self-defeating, frustrating, and hopeless. They won't act for change but won't strongly oppose those who do. The time is then ripe for revolution"

The basic idea of Saul Alinsky is that you do things to undermine people's faith in their government and institutions. Once you do that, and people become uneasy and unconfident in their government, then you can revolt for reform. (That can work both ways-to our benefit-if we fight back!)

Under the current administration, how confident are you?! Well, the radicals are clamoring for change, and it will only get worse from here! As Obama promised, he is fundamentally changing the way the U.S. operates. LTY

Chaplain's Corner, Hughes Camp Chaplain Richard W Rudd

The Fourth Amendment clearly states, "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects...shall not be violated..." Technological advances in the 21st century are violating that security in ways the Founding Fathers could not have imagined. Perhaps the most insidious assault is being waged in the field of biometrics, the scanning and measuring of human physiological characteristics to create a digital picture or map for identification. It began in the late 19th century when William Herschel, a British magistrate in India, studied the use of fingerprints and Francis Galton, Darwin's cousin, developed a method for classifying them. Juan Vucetich began the collection of fingerprints of criminals in Argentina. Since then, science has embarked on an endless quest to discover additional biomarkers. The list currently includes prints and veins of palms, hand geometry, the iris and retina of the eye, DNA, body scent, and facial construction. If one's privacy or security is breached, security devices like names, passwords, and codes can be changed. But, biomarkers are permanent parts of our genetic composition, part of who we are, and cannot be changed or discarded.

Originally, biometrics was limited to fighting criminals. In recent years, primarily due to the explosion of international terrorism, the creation and preferred method of warfare of militant Moslems, the use of biometrics has been expanding along with the use of computers and scanners to become a standard means of identifying all people for a variety of purposes. Once you have been identified, your identity can be linked to data collected without your consent or knowledge including your name, social security number, financial and medical records, criminal history, memberships, and more. Personal profiles can be put on RFID chips on documents such as passports, bank cards, driving licenses, and other sources of identification used for voting, travel, tax collection, accessing a bank account or obtaining a loan.

In the US, the use of biometrics for identification was expedited by the 9/11 attacks on NY. In 2001, Congress passed the Patriot Act which incorporates biometrics. In 2005, the Real ID Act established national standards for all identity records, but not all states follow them. The military collects data for identification using biometrics. The Homeland Security Department has spent $133 million since 2003 on biometrics. Its domestic terrorist list also includes Christian groups, pro-life organizations, defenders of marriage, and probably even Confederate organizations among others. The Defense Department has spent $3.5 billion in 2007-15. The FBI has expanded development of its fingerprint database, iris and palm scans, and facial recognition. Even a school in Pinellas, Florida, used palm scanners on students. Our government divulges very little information regarding the use of this collected data.

Internationally, Australia, Britain, Brazil, Canada, Germany, Israel, Italy, Iraq, Norway, New Zealand, and Netherlands are using biometrics. India possesses the largest system, used to identify all of its citizens. China used cameras to scan the faces in a crowd of anti-government protestors and a database to provide information on each individual to facilitate mass arrests. The proliferation of surveillance cameras makes this a reality for all people for all reasons around the world. In many nations, the crossing of borders involves biometrics. Just wave a passport over a scanner, look into a camera, or place your hand on a scanner and immigration officials can access information about you. The US has bilateral agreements with approximately twenty-five nations for the sharing of biometric information. The mining of information using biometric technology has evolved into a $13.8 billion market expected to escalate to $23.5 billion by 2020. L-1 Identity Solutions, now owned by the French company Safran, processes most driving license and has joined with the World Bank to make biometric identifications internationally. Advisors to this company include George Tenet of the CIA, Continued on page 5...

, Louis Freeh of the FBI, and Michael Chertoff of Homeland Security. The first global database in history has already been developed for use by governments, the UN, law enforcement, and corporations.

Biometrics shifts the balance of power from the people in general and the individual in particular to governments, corporations, and organizations with an agenda. It makes possible personal privacy and security violations that make NSA data sweeps seem superficial. You might have nothing to hide, but you do have privacy and security worth protecting. We must be vigilant about who collects our information, how it is used, and the inevitability of security breaches. China's recent attack on US government records is just one illustration of the real danger posed to US citizens. Without the traditional constraints of Judaeo-Christian beliefs and values that have made American society civil, in the wrong hands the use of biometrics could become a nightmare. The Secular Coalition For America actively lobbies Congress on behalf of seventeen atheist organizations and seeks to influence voters. Other groups, including American Atheists, American Humanist Association, Freedom From Religion Foundation, and Moslems seek to form cohesive and formidable voting blocs within the US by rallying around issues they share in common. Faceless bureaucrats and appointed judges are going beyond their jurisdiction of determining what is legal and illegal to redefining what is right and wrong. Today, what is legal is not always what is moral.

Satan encouraged the first man to pursue a means promising that "...your eyes will be opened, and you will be like God, knowing good and evil." (Gen. 3:5) Satan baited the hook with the advantages—knowledge, power, a better life—and was silent about the disadvantages. Biometrics can be useful against crime and terrorism, but such technology big enough and pervasive enough to protect also has the capability to dominate. Mankind is relying on technology more than God, seeking god-like knowledge and power. Those who control this technology seek the capability to say to us what only God has the right to say: "Why, even the hairs of your head are all numbered." (Lk. 12:7) Pandora's box has been opened. Against this threat of such tyranny, we must not cease to persevere and "...stand firm and hold to the traditions that (we) were taught..." (II Thess. 2:15) At this point in history, our only certain hope for real security in this age is in Christ Who promises, "I am coming soon; hold fast what you have..." (Rev. 3:11)

More Camp and SCV News

Ok, just a little more June Camp meeting news before we get on to current events. We had talked about setting up the booth at an event in Butler at the meeting, but had scant volunteers with only 2 guys offering. Something came up with one of those and so it did not happen. Maybe for the best, it was a deluge of rain that day, and I have to believe that impacted attendance at the event. If the event wasn't washed out all together. So, we'll attempt to set up at Lone Jack in August as a substitute. Please see the calendars and try to set aside some time to attend Lone Jack, which is in our backyard.

Camp Recruiter Bill Greene, is in the Mechanized Cavalry and attended their annual meeting in Marble Falls Arkansas. I believe that convention was June 2nd-5th. About 200 Cavalry members were present. One of the biggest issues discussed there is that Motorcycle clubs aren't digging our guys riding in Club territories with our patch on our guys backs. The Mechanized Cavalry is not organized as a Motorcycle club, but Motorcycle clubs are very territorial and if you're going to have a patch on your back and ride thru their turf, it could be a problem. The Cavalry is attempting to convince clubs that the Mech. Cav. Is a heritage organization that is not stepping on any club toes, but that's a state by state and club by club thing to work out. Very difficult. Stay tuned on that. To join the Mechanized Cavalry the only requirement is that you are in good standing with the SCV, ride a bike, and pay a one time $100 fee to join. You can join as dismounted. I need to join-the badass back patch alone is worth the $100! LTY

On to the current bad events

We're sure you are all aware of the over the top attacks on all things Confederate. Rahm Emanuel, former Obama White House Chief of Staff said-"never let a good crises go to waste-it will allow you to do things you never could have otherwise." Well the Yankees have wasted no time in utilizing the deranged racist killer of South Carolina to go on the attack.

The attacks are coming from the Feds, States, Cities, Big Corporate, and their always willing allies in the not so main stream press, and of course academia. Even sports like NASCAR has gotten into it. Did you see NASCAR CEO Brian Frances comments about the flag? Highly offensive to Southern NASCAR fans such as myself, very inflammatory, and I've already written my letter saying I won't be renewing my Kansas Speedway season tickets and have asked for a refund of the remaining tickets I have for this season and told them why.

This biggest disappointment to me in all of this, is our good friends the Republicans. The South has been duped into thinking the Republicans are conservative and are for the people of the South. We have given them control of literally every Southern State House, Senate, and Governorship. And now, they have turned wildly on the South and were the first to jump on tearing down our symbols.

Folks, if you are Southern in this Country, you are completely disenfranchised. From heritage issues, to your States defining marriage as between one man and one women, you are being overturned every step of the way. We are now without any real representation anywhere.

What you need to convince your friends of is, they better stand with us on resisting this fascism, because if they can stifle this free speech and free association, they can stop all free speech. And for those that don't care about this issue, the fascist will get to something they like, and soon. What the current fascist are doing now is no different than the Nazi's burning books that didn't convey the proper message, or ISIS going around in the middle east destroying libraries, museums and other cultural works that have stood for years if not centuries.

Folks, they will be taking jack hammers to our monuments on every town square soon.
