Message From The Commander, Jason Coffman

Confederate Patriots,

Winter is here and I hope everyone had a good Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's.

The City Council of Memphis Tennessee took the Nathan Bedford Forrest statue down that was above his grave where he lays. It will probably not be long until they remove what is left of him and his wife's remains and toss them into the Mississippi River if they have their way. They also took the Jefferson Davis statue down.

Our organization at the National level is currently pursuing this matter in a legal and lawful way to the best of my knowledge. What the City Council of Memphis Tennessee did was to be expected as they are of the Saul Alinsky and Karl Marx Communist indoctrination. Hopefully, all of those responsible will end up doing time in a Federal prison. It makes me sick that this curse of Communism has spread. What if this had happened to George Armstrong Custer's Statue in Monroe Michigan is the question I ask? I will convey to you what would happen. They would be in Federal custody right now awaiting sentencing for time in a Federal prison. It seems as if there is a double standard here.

If they keep up with the destroying of all graves, monuments, and memorials of the Confederate States of America Military they will come for us next, the descendants of those the monuments commemorate, which they desecrate, as to which they will be decently shot and killed in my opinion. The history of man is war and human nature shows us without a doubt that is how it will end up with these Marxist Bastards in my opinion.

What's been happening on the Western Front

Hughes Camp Christmas Party, December 9th...

We had a pretty good turnout for the Christmas party in Missouri City on December 9th. Everybody got there around 3 pm and we kicked the event off with some egg nog and other adult libations. We then started eating around 4 and everyone brought plenty of side dishes and tasty treats to go with the BBQ the camp got from Wabash BBQ. All the food was great and thanks to all who worked hard to make that happen.

We did our white elephant gift exchange and that's always a hoot. As always you came up with some neat gifts

It seemed like everyone had a good time, and the weather was decently tolerable to getting there and back.

Hope everyone had a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year! In spite of all that's wrong in our modern day Society, it's good that we can still use this time of year to be with Friends and family, celebrate the Birth of Christ, and give thanks for all we have.

And now, it's time to start off a New Year! We'll have our Camp meeting on January 11th, then celebrate Lee Jackson Day on January 20th here in Missouri.

The commies gave us a parting 2017 shot in Memphis by doing an end run around Tennessee State law. Even though they've lost case after case and subsequent appeals in their attempt to remove Nathan Bedford Forest' and Jeff Davis statues in what was formerly called Forest Park, they did it anyway on December 20th. They transferred ownership of the property to a company the City Attorney General owns, for $1000. The next day, under police protection, the monuments were removed. Funny that government resources were used to protect a private operation at that point to desecrate our Monuments. That's just one of the conflicts of interest. But the monuments are now in the commies hands at an undisclosed location. This will probably be the new model for the commies, sell the land to a private person who is not subject to State Laws. HQ is planning to file a suit against the manuever, but the damage is done... Errrrr LTY

The next meeting is January 11th where we will discuss more about a new Hughes Camp pop-up for festivals, Hughes Camp caps and shirts, and new Hughes Camp indoor flags and flag stands. I have more time on my hands to concentrate on these aforementioned items for the camp now. I will see you at the meeting.

Yours in the Bonds of Confederate Brotherhood,

To plan a strategy for dealing with adversaries, it is imperative not only to identify them, but to know how they think, what they believe that motivates them, and be able to recognize their agenda when it manifests itself. Liberals not only refuse to call an enemy by their name, they cannot even correctly identify who the real enemy is. The roots of 21st-century liberal ideas, beliefs, and agenda are traced back to a combination of sources. To cite a few examples, Hinduism from the 3rd millennium BC, Buddhism from the 6th century BC, Wicca, and New Age all believe in some form of reincarnation and evolution, that man can solve his own problems and save himself without God and even achieve deity. From this comes the incorporation of evolution into schools' curriculum and the movement toward a new world order and one world government. Current events are evidence that liberals cannot deliver on their idealistic mirage of a man-made utopia of peace and prosperity for all mankind. The claim that all is subjective and relative and there are no absolute truths or moral absolutes, situation ethics, reliance on feelings instead of facts (if it feels good, do it), and insistence on a convoluted concept of tolerance come from Taoism of the 1st millennium BC, secular humanism, Wicca, Postmodernism, and New Age. Postmodernism and New Age teach that reality only exists in the mind and man can create his own reality, which leads to the denial of commonsense observations, scientific facts, and Biblical truth. Consequently, some people now think they can merely select their gender or deny the race into which they were born. Gnosticism from the 1st century AD, Buddhism, and New Age value esoteric knowledge and spiritual enlightenment, leading to the belief in UFO's from some imagined superior planet as well as other undocumented and unreliable sources of information. Hinduism, Wicca, and New Age consider all nature to be interrelated and divine. From this comes a religious devotion to the environmental movement. Hinduism, Wicca, and New Age promote syncretism teaching that all religions either lead to the same god or that all gods are equal. This is the basis of their anti-Christian and Semitic hatred. Their goal is to homogenize all religions into one system led by a false prophet. (Rev. 16:13, 19:20) What all of these misleading belief-systems have in common is rejection of the Judeo-Christian God, the Bible, and the church. The tenets of these ancient philosophies have been repackaged to be more pervasive and invasive for modern consumption. Overtly and subliminally, they permeate such avenues of mental manipulation as movies, video games, music, advertising, mass media, books, school curriculums, corporate boards of directors and seminars, holistic health programs, various forms of martial arts and yoga, and infiltrate political, environmental, racial, peace, and even religious movements.

Liberalism makes no effort to conceal its disdain for those deplorable conservatives in general and Christians in particular, with their Bibles and guns. This should come as no surprise. Christ foretold that the time would come when "...you will be hated by all for My name's sake." (Matt. 10:22) There are only two ways to deal with international and national threats—diplomacy and reason or some form of force. The ultimate sacrifice one can make for a cause they are committed to is to give their life for that cause. Christ promised that "...whoever loses his life for My sake will find it." (Matt. 16:25) But, giving one's life for a just cause does not have to result in death. We can also give our lives "as a living sacrifice" to a cause that is "holy and acceptable to God" (Rom. 12:1) by dedicating our time, efforts, skills, and financial support to its realization. What we do in the present will produce results with consequences that affect our future and that of the next generation of Americans both temporally and eternally. The challenge is great, but the reward is greater.

General Robert E Lee

Born on January 19th, 1807, he was the son of American Revolution War Hero Harry "Lighthorse" Lee. Robert graduated second in his class at the US Military Academy at West Point in 1829. Serving in the Corp of Engineers, he finally set foot on the battlefield in the Mexican American War, where he was noted for gallantry and emerged as a Colonel. Lee served as Superintendent of West Point from 1852 to 1855, and was responsible for the education of many men that would later serve under him and against him. Lincoln offered Lee overall command of Federal forces in 1861, but Lee declined and tendered his resignation, choosing to side with his home State of Virginia. Lee went on to lead the Army of Northern Virginia. Lee died October 12th, 1870, and is buried at Lee Chapel, Lexington, VA
